RUSSIAN RETREAT ROBS TEUTONS OF COMPLETE VICTORY

Muscovites, However, Will Not be Able to Resume Offensive.

FRENCH LESS ACTIVE IN WEST

British Report Successful Attack on German Possession in Africa; Fort at Bukoba Being Destroyed. Terrible New Guns of Teutons Effective.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, June 28.—The anniversary of the assassination at Sarajevo of Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria which turned Europe into an armed camp and most of it into a battlefield finds the struggle between Teutonism and Slavism for racial supremacy at the what is thought to be its high water mark with the Teutonic armies for the most part still outwardly though not without difficulty dominating the situation.

The penetration of the German armies eastward from Lemberg has had the inevitable result of forcing the Russians from the Dniester front between Halicz and Zurawno where they had offered such stubborn resistance. The Muscovites as they admit are now falling back to the Gnila Lipa river which runs from the northward of Przemysl and through Rohatyn to Halicz where it joins the Dniester. Military writers here anticipate that this backward move will necessitate a total withdrawal from the Dniester and that the Russians will make their next stand on the River Bug.

These writers also hold that though the Russian retreat must mean a great retardation to the prospects of a Muscovite recovery to a condition making a counter offensive possible, it has also robbed the Austro-Germans of the complete victory that might have been theirs if they had been able to force the Russians to fight to a finish instead of the latter being able to withdraw their armies intact.

In the western field of the war the French offensive seems less active than for some time past pending consolidation of the ground already won and a clearer insight into the next move projected by the Germans.

From far off Lake Victoria Nyanza, in South Africa the British report a fruitful British attack on the German fortified port of Bukoba, the movement being made both from land and water with the result that on June 22 the fort was destroyed, the wireless station put out of action, many boats sunk and guns captured and destroyed.

GALICIAN BATTLES WON BY NEW GERMAN GUNS

By Associated Press.

WARSAW, Russian Poland, June 28.—Seven-eighths of the wounds in the recent fighting were caused by shells half of which were fired from big calibre guns said Surgeon Major Lefschinskoff in an interview on returning to Warsaw from the front.

"Bullets play no part now," he continued, "and the infantryman's rifle is a toy. Infantry merely occupies the trenches the cannon have won."

"Most devastating of all are the new Skoda shells of the German allies which are 17 inches in diameter and weigh 2,800 pounds. The Skoda howitzer shoots at a high angle and its shell penetrates 20 feet into soft earth before exploding two seconds after striking. These howitzers do not resemble the Krupp mortars of the same calibre to which they are said to be superior in every way. When a Skoda shell hits it means death to everything within a radius of 150 yards and even farther off.

The fierce pressure of its gas rips open the bomb proof shelter and catches those who escape the metal fragments and flying debris. This gas enters the body cavities and tears flesh asunder sometimes stripping the men of their clothes. Of course, the men in the neighborhood of the explosion are annihilated. So fierce is the heat of the explosion of the shells that it melts rifle barrels as if they had been struck by lightning."

DRAMATIC DUEL BETWEEN HOSTILE AIRCRAFT

LONDON, June 28.—A dramatic duel in which a British aeroplane roamed over the Belgian town of Poelcapelle at a height of 7,000 feet, met and engaged a large German biplane which had double engines and propellers is described by the eye witness at British army headquarters in a narrative given out today by the press bureau. He writes:

"The German machine first circled around at the same time shooting a machine gun but so far as known not inflicting any damage. Then our observer fired 10 rounds in return at a range of less than 200 yards. It had some effect as the hostile biplane wavered and after more shots its engine stopped. The biplane then dived to a level of 2,000 feet where it again flattened its course flying slowly and erratically. Under heavy anti-aircraft fire from below our pilot turned toward the line to complete his work. When the machine was hit he had hoped to make for home but the petrol tank had been pierced and as the aeroplane circled down the petrol was set afire by the exhaust and ran down the front of the plane, which travelled on to the accompaniment of a rattle of musketry as the unused rounds of machine gun ammunition exploded in the heat and the pilot's loaded revolver was discharged.

The pilot however did not lose control and the plane proceeded steadily downward. Before it reached the ground a large part of the frame was destroyed. Even the hardwood blades of the propeller were so burned that the propeller ceased to revolve. When the machine finally landed back of our lines both officers had been burned and the pilot climbing out of the blazing wreck tripped over a wire and sprained his ankle."

WAGE SITUATION IS BEING ADJUSTED TO CONDITIONS

Law of Supply and Demand Having Effect of Causing Satisfactory Adjustments.

Most of the merchant coke operators of the Connellsville region have been paying less than the Frick scale of wages during the past year, but the conditions which prompted employers to reduce wages are changing to happier ones and the wage question is adjusting itself to the ancient law of supply and demand.

The Tecumseh Coke Company and all the Hillman coking interests reduced wages about 10% from the Frick scale on January 1 last. Now they have been posted that the Frick scale will be restored on July 1. The rate for mining will be 1 and 1/2 cents per wagon over the present rates. Drivers track layers etc will be given the $2.50 [illegible] rate and in departments an increase brings the pay to $2.50 for workmen of these classes. Other inside labor will be advanced to $2.1

The Frick scale pays $1.15 for mining and loading 100 bushels of common coal and 5 cents for machine coal and $1.27 for wet heading coal. This is the highest wage scale ever paid and the Frick company has kept it up under all the discouraging conditions of the past year employing more men than necessary at most plants in order to divide the dwindled many men fairly among them.

The merchant operators on the other hand faced profitless prices and dwindling demands. They had more men than jobs. They naturally felt that the men ought to share the hard times so they cut wages. The men were glad to get employment at the time. It is different now. Demand for coke is growing. Jobs are getting plenty. Men are getting scarce. Wages are coming back.

GERARD FORECASTS A FAVORABLE GERMAN REPLY

WASHINGTON, June 28.—A favorable reply by Germany to the last American note on submarine warfare is indicated in today's State Department advices from Berlin. The advices came from Ambassador Gerard and were notably the first of [illegible] nature since the American note reached the German foreign office.

The exact nature of the ambassador's message was not divulged for obvious reasons and it did not become known whether he revealed any indication of the trend of the forthcoming German reply. His dispatch was of sufficient detail however to cause officials to assume an optimistic attitude. It was sent at once to President Wilson at the summer White House at Cornish.

GERMANS CROSS DNIESTER ALONG THE ENTIRE FRONT

BERLIN, June 28.—The town of Halicz on the Dniester has been occupied by German troops according to the announcement given out today by German military headquarters.

Besides the occupation of Halicz the statement says the river Dniester has been crossed by the Germans along the entire front.

GERMANS SEEKING RAILROAD CONTROL

PARIS, June 28.—The Germans in fighting furiously at Pagatelle and in the trenches of Calonne are seeking to capture the strongly fortified town of Verdun according to Lieutenant Colonel Rousset a military critic. He believes they are seeking to gain control of the railroad from Chalons Sainte Menehould.

British Steamship Is Sunk.

LONDON, June 28.—The British steamship Indrian of 2,340 tons gross was sunk on Sunday by a German submarine at a point southwest of Fastnet Ireland. The crew was saved.

PROBE HUERTA'S PLOT

Americans as Well as Mexicans Are Under Suspicion.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Inside details of the plot to restore a Huerta regime in Mexico nipped in the bud by the United States began trickling out today through the net of official secrecy while General Huerta and his chief lieutenant Pasqual Orozco are under federal detention at El Paso.

Other Mexicans nearly a score of whom had a part in the plot that failed and probably some Americans are under surveillance by the Department of Justice.

Secretary Lansing conferred today with Assistant Attorney General Warren and it became apparent that the Department of Justice intends to sift the case to find the backers of the new revolution. Where the trail might lead in the United States is only a matter of conjecture.

EL PASO, Tex., June 28.—General Huerta declined today further to discuss the events of yesterday which led to his detention on charges of complicity in a plot to set afoot a new Mexican revolution. He stood upon his declaration of last night that he would not enter Mexico at the head of an armed force.

COCHRAN ESTATE IS AGAIN BROUGHT UP IN ORPHANS' COURT

THE ACTION INVOLVES $36,000

Claim is That This Sum, Paid Out of Estate of Mrs. Smith for Support of Her Children, Should Have Come From Estate of Late James Cochran.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, June 28.—The estate of James Cochran, deceased, the object of much litigation in the state, was brought into the Fayette county orphans' court again today when Attorney Charles E. Moore of Latrobe presented the petition of Henry L. Cochran committee in charge of the affairs of Mrs. Annie H. Smith daughter of the late James Cochran, for the reimbursement of funds expended out of her own estate for her support and maintenance and the support and maintenance of her children. The action involves $36,000. Attorney Lee Smith and W. E. Crow are associated with Mr. Moore in the case.

According to the petition James Cochran died in November 1891 leaving six children of which Mrs. Annie H. Smith was one. A special bequest valued at $20,000 was given her and in addition to that the residuary estate was divided into six equal parts one of which was to be held at interest for the support and maintenance of Mrs. Smith and her children. After the death of James Cochran his wife died and she left her estate to her six children directly. It is claimed that $36,000 has been paid out of the estate of Mrs. Smith for her support and maintenance and the support and maintenance of her children which should have been paid out of the estate of the late James Cochran according to the provisions of his will.

The petition was taken by Judge J. Q. Work and an order probably will be made within a short time.

An order for the distribution of $4,143 was made in the estate of Joseph Waz, deceased, who died in Brownsville July 2, 1913. Judge Work ordered that the balance in the hands of the administrator be paid to Ann Flesh, mother of the decedent, who lives in Austria.

The Title & Trust Company of Western Pennsylvania was appointed guardian for the following minors: Paul S. Brickman of Connellsville; Francis, James, Margaret and Helen Kenyon of Upper Tyrone township. The estates of all these minors are small.

An order for the sale of 100 acres of land in Henry Clay township valued at $1,000 was authorized in the estate of Jackson L. Fisher, deceased, for the payment of debts. The estate is valued at $10,000 and the debts amount to less than $3,500.

READS HIS FIRST MASS

Church Crowded With Friends of Rev. William McCishin.

Rev. Father William McCishin read his first solemn high mass yesterday morning at 10 o'clock in the Immaculate Conception Church in the presence of one of the largest congregations in the history of the church. He also administered the first communion to a class of 66 children. Rev. Father McCishin was celebrant of the services. Rev. Father William Merz deacon, Father Gilli subdeacon, Rev. Father Aurelius of St. Vincent's College at Beatty delivered the sermon. Last evening Rev. Father McCishin imparted an individual blessing on each person in the congregation.

This evening a large reception will be held in the Parochial school auditorium in his honor. Rev. Father Michael Stanzel read his first solemn mass in St. John's Slavish Catholic Church in the West Side at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. Rev. Father Bunceck was master of the ceremony and delivered the sermon. Rev. Father McCishin and Rev. Father Stanzel were ordained to the priesthood Friday morning at St. Vincent's Archabbey.

"SOME" LETTUCE

Constable William Roland Has Big Heads.

Constable William Roland of Dunbar township holds the record for growing lettuce. Recently he brought two lettuce heads to Connellsville and together they filled a one-half bushel basket. The two heads weighed about eight pounds. Constable Roland has a whole garden full of such heads.

His nearest competitor is George Luchter of Leisenring No. 3 who has large heads but not the size of Constable Roland's.

SEVEN GET DIPLOMAS.

Five Girls and Two Boys Get Sheepskin at Parochial School.

A class of seven, five girls and two boys, was graduated from the Parochial school at the closing exercises last Friday. There were no special exercises. Rev. Father John T. Burns presented the diplomas.

IDENTIFIES WAITER

Hotel Manager Says He Took Lodgings Night Schneider Was Attacked.

By Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, June 28.—George M. Henry, a waiter of Washington, D. C., who was arrested there and brought here last night in connection with an attempt on the life of Franklin P. Schneider, a wealthy candy manufacturer in a hotel here last Thursday, was identified today by C. W. Morris manager of the hotel as having been a guest there the day Schneider was assaulted.

McHenry and Thomas G. Forney, the Washington attorney, who is alleged by the police to have confessed that he was implicated in the plot to kill Schneider his father-in-law, will be given a hearing June 30 on charges of felonious assault and battery with attempt to kill.

Forney is being closely guarded by the police as they believe he will attempt to take his life if he has an opportunity. He is said to be the son of Frank Forney, a wealthy farmer of Clinton Mills, O., and to have had a brilliant record at the Ohio State University at Columbus where he was educated.

POLES COMMEND WILSON

Organization Favors His Attitude in German Trouble.

At a meeting of the Polish residents of Connellsville in Trinity Roman Catholic Church on Seventh street, West Side, yesterday, a branch of the Polish National Council of America was formed and resolutions pledging the support of all Poles to President Wilson in his attitude in the German controversy were adopted. The resolutions signed by Rev. T. Sielecki, pastor of Trinity Church, President M. Lukazal and Secretary Ignace Mach of the new organization will be sent to the President.

The council which was organized by Alexander M. Jaslenski, editor of the Polish National Weekly of New York City, elected the following officers:

THIEVES KILL CHICKENS

Chicken thieves got busy on the West Side Saturday evening and wrung the heads from 11 chickens owned by Henry Martz of Ninth street, West Side. The coop contained 26 chickens but the thieves were satisfied with less than half of them.

The robbery was not discovered until Sunday morning when Mrs. Martz went to the coop to feed the chickens. The number that responded to her call seemed small and on going into the coop she found 11 heads that had been wrung off.

The police were notified but have apprehended no one as yet. There are several who are suspected. Footsteps near the coop showing that at least three men had been there.

CARRANZA DEFEATED

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Further confirmation of the defeat of the Carranza army advancing on Mexico City brought to Vera Cruz by an American from the capital was received today at the State Department.

The State Department's dispatch said General Carranza was rushing troops trains from Vera Cruz to the capital that fighting at the hour the courier started still was going on the outskirts of the city and that a repetition of the tragic 10 days which preceded the overthrow of Madero with probably added horrors was feared.

DENIES BUYING JUNK

Negro Will Not Admit He Made Deals With Boy Vandals.

Reuben Cole, the West Side junk dealer, denies that he bought any of the goods that were stolen from the house of Miss Bess Stoody on the West Side. The boys who were implicated in the robbery however still claim that he is the man to whom they sold the goods.

G. A. Markle, who is agent for the house, has written Miss Stoody, who is in Alton, N. Y., to find out what action to take in the matter.

FIRE DESTROYS AN OLD LANDMARK AND CAUSES $3,000 LOSS

George Shaw Property, Now Plumbing Shop, Prey to Flames.

THE ORIGIN IS A MYSTERY

Burning Rubbish in Yards or Boys With Fragments of Fire Crackers Is Believed to Have Set Fire to Bedding in Stable. J. J. Evans Loser.

Loss estimated at $3,000 was caused early Saturday evening when fire of unknown origin gutted the old George Shaw property on Church place used by J. J. Evans as a workhouse and warehouse. The interior of the structure was practically burned out, with all tools of the firm being ruined and a quantity of supplies destroyed.

The fire was discovered by H. J. Bodet who lives in the apartment above his store on Pittsburg street. He sent in an alarm and the truck responded quickly. The fire was burning fiercely when the firemen arrived but it took an hour's hard work to extinguish it completely.

The fire originated in some bedding in a stall of the stable which adjoins the warehouse. It is thought that rubbish fires in the surrounding yards may have ignited it or that boys setting off firecrackers in the neighborhood may have thrown one of their lighted fragments into the stable.

The building was an old frame structure and it burned easily. The loss was caused principally to tools made up stock of the pipe, fittings, bathtubs and plumbing supplies. Mr. Evans said today that an inventory of the goods known to be damaged or destroyed totals $3,000. Some of the heavier machinery has not been reached in the debris but it is believed this is damaged beyond repair by the heat as the slightest warping renders it unfit for use.

W. J. Finnigan, a tinner employed by Mr. Evans, lost a quantity of valuable tools. His loss alone will be several hundred dollars, it is said.

During the fire a large crowd gathered and several drivers hindered the firemen by driving over the hose which lay stretched across Pittsburg street. Two of these, M. C. Wimer and Albert Croston, were arrested and fined $1 when arraigned before Mayor Marietta on Sunday morning. Several others escaped without being apprehended. One of these, a milk man, was the most flagrant offender.

The George Shaw building is an old landmark, it having been erected in the days when buildings were pieced together, not merely tacked together with nails. Mr. Evans' loss is about half covered by insurance.

AN INFERNAL MACHINE

Cardboard With Long Wire Nails Set in Road to Puncture Tires.

While driving through Leisenring S. T. Harry unearthed from the road a square of cardboard about 18 inches long and a foot wide into which about 25 nails had been driven for the purpose of causing punctures in automobile tires. The card was covered up by earth and the long wire nails arranged in such a way that it could not help but cause a puncture. The infernal machine, as he called it, is on exhibition in the Wright-Metzler window.

Accompanying the exhibit is a letter from the Connellsville Automobile Club announcing that it will pay $25 reward for information that will lead to the arrest of the persons responsible for such devices.

Similar complaints of nails spread along the road to cause punctures have come from Trotter and Leisenring.

GETS 20 DAYS

Woman Sent to Jail on Disorderly Conduct Charge.

Margaret Van Miller of South Connellsville was given a heavy sentence by Mayor Marietta yesterday morning, the police court getting 20 days in jail. She was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct having been found in a house on Peach street with Morgan Miller and Charles Trader. The two men were given sentences of 48 hours each.

John McGraw and David Long were also given 48 hour sentences for drunkenness and fighting on Main street. Ernest Weltz, who was arrested on a disorderly conduct charge, left a $5.50 forfeit yesterday, promising to appear for a hearing this morning but he did not show up.

BIG GAIN IN SHIPMENTS

Southwest Branch Leads All 13 Divisions of the Pennsylvania.

A tabulated report of the shipments of freight over the Pennsylvania railroad divisions in Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey, shows that the greatest tonnage increase has been made on the South west branch. J. J. Truesdale, district freight agent of the Pennsylvania, said today.

The Southwest branch of the Pennsylvania railroad has shown a larger increase in shipments of coke and general freight since January 1 than any other of the 13 divisions of the Pennsylvania railroad.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE FOR THE UNION SERVICES

Rev. J. L. Proudfit Will Deliver the First Sermon When Meetings Open Next Sunday.

Arrangements have been completed for the union services of the Protestant churches to be held on Sunday evenings during the months of July and August on the vacant ground adjoining the Colonial Theatre, South Pittsburg street. The young peoples services will commence at 6:30 o'clock and the preaching services at 7:30 o'clock. Comfortable seats will be provided and the grounds will be well lighted. Music will be rendered by a chorus of 100 voices. Ministers to preside and preach the last two Sunday evenings in August will be announced later. The program for the services is as follows:

Sunday evening, August 15—Rev. William Nelson presiding; Rev. E. B. Burgess, sermon.

BIG LUMBER MILL

Kendalls to Begin Operation on Vast Scale in Oregon.

The Kendall Lumber Company of which Samuel A. Kendall of Meyersdale and J. L. Kendall of Pittsburg are the principal owners plan to erect a big saw mill at Roseburg, Ore. Property owners of Roseburg recently by a vote of more than nine to one decided in favor of a bond issue of $300,000 as an inducement for the Kendalls to begin operations on their timber holdings there which are said to contain 15,000 acres. The Kendalls own a large operation at Crellin, Garrett county, Md., and the Oregon stumpage is so large that it would keep 50 such mills as Crellin going for an indefinite period.

It is expected the population of Roseburg will have increased at least 5,000 by the time the mill is ready for operation and doubled a short while thereafter.

S. A. Kendall with Mrs. Kendall and their sons Samuel and John Wiley Kendall left in a private car last Friday for Oregon to remain several weeks while Mr. Kendall makes arrangements to complete the big mill.

DROWNED AT ALLISON

Everson Man Attacked by Cramp While in Swimming.

Edward Contre, 22 years of age, whose home was in Everson, was drowned in the reservoir at Allison late Sunday afternoon. The body was recovered and will be taken to the home of his parents.

Contre who was a clerk in the company store together with Earl Smith the store manager and a number of others were swimming in the reservoir. Contre it is believed was attacked by cramps for he was a good swimmer. His companions who were on shore heard his cries for help but could not reach him until he sank. He was brought to the surface and a physician summoned but by the time he arrived all life was extinct.

IN SUCH PAIN WOMAN CRIED

Suffered Everything Until Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Florence, So. Dakota.—"I used to be very sick every month with bearing down pains and backache and had headache a good deal of the time and very little appetite. The pains were so bad that I used to sit right down on the floor and cry, because it hurt me so and I could not do any work at those times. An old woman advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I got a bottle. I felt better the next month so I took three more bottles of it and got well so I could work all the time. I hope every woman who suffers like I did will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. P. W. LANSING, Box 8, Allyn, Wash.

Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

How to Put Up Pineapples.

Here is a recipe by Marion Harris Neil ...

Twelve large, ripe pineapples will make about thirty half-pint glasses of preserves. Remove the eyes, then pare the pineapple carefully and by means of a coarse grater shred the fruit, saving the juice.

Take two large cupfuls of the grated pineapple and one scant cupful of water. To this add two-and-a-half cupfuls of sugar.

Turn into a preserving kettle and place it over the fire. Remove the scum frequently from it while boiling. Boil until it looks clear and thickens when a little is tested on a ... saucer.

When done pour it in a basin and allow it to cool. Divide into sterilized glasses and seal with melted Parowax.

MT PLEASANT IS PLANNING SUNDAY SCHOOLS' PICNIC

Liberal Contract Is Obtained From West Penn Railways.

THE FARE WILL BE 30 CENTS

Company E to Resume Regular Weekly Drills and Members Who Fail to Turn Out on July 5 Will be Subject to a Fine; Other News.

Special to The Courier.

MOUNT PLEASANT, June 28.—The committees from the various Sunday schools who will take part in the union picnic to be held Thursday, August 5th, at Oakford Park, held a meeting in the Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday afternoon. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved and C. E. Mullin opened with prayer. A report of the fare committee was heard and a rate of 30 cents for all children over ten years of age and all grown persons will be charged, and all children under ten years old will go free of charge. Any Sunday school wishing to send children from their school will provide tickets for the children themselves. On motion of C. A. Grant the contract as proposed by the West Penn Railways Company was accepted and the contract signed and forwarded today. The members of the general committee feel very grateful to the West Penn officials for their very liberal contract. A motion was adopted to invite the Reformed, Lutheran and Methodist Sunday schools from Tarr and Ruffsdale. A refreshment committee with the following committee was appointed: Fred Irwin, J. P. Workman, C. A. Grant, A. L. Myers, Fred Dellinger, A. S. Overholt, David Wilson and Harry Reed. The publicity committee has the following members: D. H. Stoner, P. B. Fisher, C. B. Scarab, Dan Weaver and W. P. Lorenz. Music, Ralph Kuhn, C. D. Zuck, Wyly Overly, Carl Ruder, Robert Goodman, Opal Long and S. C. Stevenson.

A committee will be appointed later on transportation, also a man for each car coming and going.

Orders have been issued by Captain Walter E. Evans of Company D, Tenth Regiment, that regular weekly drills will be resumed on Wednesday evening and continue each Wednesday evening until further notice. The company will also report at the armory on Monday, July 5th, to take part in the observance of July 5th. Those failing to report for the parade will be subject to a fine. Those not reporting for the parade Memorial Day may escape a fine if they report regularly for the drills and on July 5th. A number of the men would not report for the parade on Memorial Day up stood along the street laughing at the ones who did march, and Captain Evans means to enforce very rigidly the law and will proceed to fine every man who does not appear, first giving them the regular court martial. A number of the men were court martialed and fined for not attending inspection.

During the vacation of the boys' vested choir of the Reformed Presbyterian Church during July and August, the girls' choir will furnish the music.

On next Sunday morning, July 4th, Rev. J. D. Hartman, pastor of the Reunion Presbyterian Church, will preach a sermon on John Huss Patriot and Reformer of Bohemia, in the church, July 6th marking the 500th anniversary of the martyrdom of Huss. All are most cordially invited to attend, especially Bohemians and persons of Bohemian descent.

At a meeting of the Hook & Ladder Company yesterday $150 in cash prizes were put up for July 5th, and refreshment committee of C. Randolph, C. Ong, N. Suter, C. Holmes and H. Bossart, was appointed.

CHARLES CHAPLIN TODAY.

The famous comedian, Charles Chaplin, comes to the Soisson today in the two reel comedy "Caught in a Cabaret." It is one of the funniest of his series of farces. The twelfth episode of "The Black Box" is also presented today with Herbert Rawlinson and Anna Little. The Box two reel drama "The Valley of the Silent Men" has Ben Wilson and Dorothy Phillips in the leading roles. "In His Mind's Eye" is a Big U. drama that has strong situations. The Power's detective drama Lady Raffles and Detective Duck in "The Sign of the Sacred Safety Pin." Tomorrow the sensational five reel drama "The Prince of Darkness," will be the attraction. It is a Parisian story of some worth.

The Globe

Helen Gardner, the popular moving picture actress, is appearing today at the Globe in "The Breath of Araby," a Vitagraph drama in three acts. The picture has met with wonderful success and gives Miss Gardner splendid opportunities to display her ability as an emotional actress. The bill also includes "Blindfolded," an Essanay drama in two acts, presenting Richard Travers; "The Black Wallet," a Vitagraph drama with George Stanley. Tomorrow "The Ring of Death" part four of "Heart O' Strife," a serial featuring Crane Wilbur and Mary Charleson; "The Wild Engine," one of a series of exciting railroad pictures, with Helen Holmes in the leading role. "The Outlaw's Bride," a western drama, featuring Tim Mix; and "The Cook's Mistake," will be shown.

INDEPENDENTS WIN.

Defeat Railroaders in a One-Sided Contest on the West Side.

The fast Master Mechanics' baseball team of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad was defeated by the Connellsville Independents on the West Side grounds Saturday afternoon 8-1. The railroaders were out for revenge, having been defeated by the Independents in a recent twelve-inning game, 1-0, and they were certain, but their opponents proved too strong.

Hughes for the Independents had the Master Mechanics at his mercy while the Independents hammered Houser for eight runs. Hughes and Rhabeck were the Independent battery, and Houser and Friel for the railroaders.

Why Suffer from Rheumatism?
When relief from rheumatic pain may be had at so small a cost it is surprising that anyone should fail to avail themselves of it. Joseph Cappelli, Canastota, N. Y., suffered intensely with pains due to rheumatism in his limbs for a long time. A friend told him about Chamberlain's Liniment. One application relieved him wonderfully and a few days' treatment effected a cure. Many others have found quick relief by applying this liniment. For sale by all dealers.—Adv.

THE EUROPEAN WAR.

The European war is turning the Continent into a shambles. It is estimated that over 3,000,000 men have already been killed, to say nothing of those wounded and held prisoner, and the slaughter goes ruthlessly on. There seems to be no end in sight. People are beginning to anxiously ask themselves how long this mighty struggle will last and what its probable results will be.

Germany has thus far inflicted the most severe blows upon her enemies. Her armies have just driven the Russians out of Austrian territory and into Russland, while the German troops still hold the soil of France and German papers again shout the slogan, "On to Paris!" Germany would undoubtedly have been in Paris last fall but for the stubborn resistance encountered in Belgium where little or none was anticipated. Germany's successes have been due to her preparedness for war. She had been preparing for thirty years. During all that time she had been talking peace and piling up war stores. Not only was her initial supply of war material greater than that of any other nation or perhaps of all other nations combined, but her facilities for its manufacture are still greater than those of the Allies.

This is one of the greatest weaknesses of the Allies. It is said [illegible] retreat after successful [illegible] into the [illegible] [illegible] to insufficient ammunition. A desperate effort is being made to remedy this defect. David Lloyd George, British Minister of Munitions, is reported as declaring that the direction of the war, and ultimate victory or defeat, depends upon the supply of munitions, that the engineering and chemical resources of the country will be organized, and that when this is done the factories of England and France will turn out more war supplies than those of Germany and Austria. Every English energy is being bent to this purpose and when it is accomplished the Allies expect that superiority of numbers and of munitions of war will turn the tide of battle in their favor. In the meantime there is of course, danger of the tide overwhelming them.

In the same connection the appointment is noted of Davis Alfred Thomas, the Welsh Coal King, to represent the Munitions Department in the United States and Canada. Thomas was here just prior to the war looking over American and Canadian coal properties with a view to investment and development for the purpose of forwarding his Pacific coal trade after the opening of the Panama Canal. Just what his duties under his present appointment will be is not definite, but it is no secret that the Allies are purchasing considerable quantities of finished and unfinished war material in this country, and the primary mission of the Coal King is [illegible] to buy something of a more finished and deadly character than coal in or out of the hill.

The European demand for American steel products has been the moving factor in restoring our industrial activity. While, therefore, the European war is in some respects an advantage to this country, we are bound to share in its bad effects when it is over, and we can only deplore its existence, hope for its end and keep our fingers out of it.

PIKE DINNERS LAWFUL YET.

While the furnacemen and the coke operators are struggling with starvation prices and each blaming the other with helping to make them, the Cleveland Iron Trade Review reports an upward movement in finished iron and steel as follows:

"The general movement toward the adoption of somewhat higher prices for leading iron and steel products especially shapes, plates and bars, continues. There are however some irregularities. Railroad buying for domestic use is more prominent and additional large orders for Russia and other foreign countries for locomotives and cars are expected. The movement to advance the price of machine tools has become more general. The principal makers of milling machines have effected advances ranging from 10 to [illegible] per cent. Further buying of machine tools to manufacture munitions of war features the market in the east, although this buying is not on as large a scale as in the past."

The Gary dinners have been abolished, but their influence seems to hang over the steel trade. Perhaps if the merchant furnacemen and the merchant coke operators would join in an old fashioned Pike dinner, spending the day in the mountains in sweet converse with nature in its mild and gentle mood, the result might be highly encouraging to the price of pig iron and furnace coke. It's worth a trial anyhow. The Gary dinners have been abolished but the Pike dinners are just as good as ever.

BUT ASIDE FROM THAT.

The Uniontown Standard of Saturday last convicts us of a grammatical slip. We acknowledge the mingling of the tenses, but we turn to the first page of The Standard and find in letters two inches long the headline, "Much War Activity Today."

The spelling of The Standard does not seem to be any improvement on the grammar of The Courier.

These errors happen in the rush and hurry of newspaper composition and they are common to all newspapers. The Courier no doubt has its share of them, but, in the language of the vernacular, "Aside from that we're all right aint we?"

Connellsville has 73 applicants for teachers' certificates, and the Connellsville high school is not a normal school, either.

BARGAIN DAY ADVERTISING.

The Connellsville merchants are getting ready for Bargain Day. There will be little doubt of the entire success of the day if the merchants provide the bargains and advertise them properly. Some merchants seem to think that every merchant should join in Bargain Day advertising. It would be a good thing for every merchant to do so. But those who don't will lose out and those who do will sell the most goods. This at least has been the lesson of experience. Every merchant should be invited to advertise, but no attempt should be made to force him to do so. It's his funeral.

The rumor that a tin plate plant will be erected at Gary is denied by the United States Steel Corporation. Nevertheless the erection of such a plant at such a place would be a logical industrial combination, and such combinations or large industrial units will be the future policy of the Steel Corporation though it may not be announced with brass bands and banners.

The Saturday evening fire wasn't as bad as it looked, but it might have been a lot worse.

It has already cost the foreign owner of two coke region dogs $16.10 for the vicious conduct of one of them. It might have been better for the owner if the new law had overtaken his dogs before prosecution overtook him.

The Good Roads movement has been started in Southern Fayette county. It is time for the Yough region to get a move on.

The restoration of the Frick wage scale by the merchant operators of the Connellsville region means that they must insist upon better than $1.75 contract coke. Better have a Pike dinner and talk it over.

The Russians are reported to be running still, but the Germans are making a lot of noise about it.

The Chilean ore fleet of the Bethlehem Steel Company will be built in this country now that war conditions have made its construction impossible by foreign contractors. The steel company will have to pay a better price for its boats, but it is getting better prices for its steel and selling more of it, so that it really has no complaint coming.

That 80% steel business has not overtaken the merchant furnaces or the merchant coke ovens but it's coming.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE!

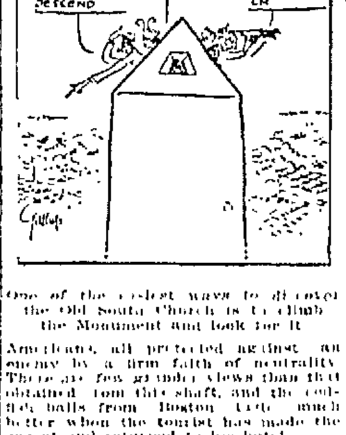

Bunker Hill

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash"

Tourists who are exploring Boston should not fail to see the Bunker Hill Monument. It can be easily reached by walking northeast from the Commons, past the old burying-ground, veering northwest to Harvard street, falling off to the east in a graceful curve past Portland street, straightening out due north up Charleston street and over on the Causeway a furlong to the bridge, thence to the town square and past the Moving Picture Theatre on a right hand bias to Monument avenue, then straight up.

Bunker Hill Monument stands on top of a hill. It is not an imposing hill but was very hard to climb in 1775. The monument is a granite shaft over 200 feet high completely surrounded with souvenirs. Persons of a persevering disposition and strong in the legs may climb to the top of the monument. From here they may easily discover the State House, the Library, Faneuil Hall and other celebrated buildings of Boston, which are a blamed sight more difficult to discover on foot. In fact one of the easiest ways to discover the Old South Church is to climb the Bunker Hill Monument and look for it.

From this monument one can also see Boston Harbor, Harvard University and the residences of over 1,000,000

One of the easiest ways to discover the Old South Church is to climb the Monument and look for it.

Americans, all protected against an enemy by a firm faith of neutrality. There are few grander views than that obtained from this shaft, and the codfish balls from Boston taste much better when the tourist has made the ascent and returned to his hotel.

Bunker Hill Monument was built by popular subscription. This proves that it was erected to a worthy cause. A few influential friends can always gain a bill through a legislature appropriating funds for a monument, nature, object and location to be determined later. But when the public digs up enough nickels and dimes to build a three-hundred-foot finger pointing upward, said public has not been fooled by a pull.

Bunker Hill Monument was built to honor a number of amateur Americans who fortified a hill and held it until their powder ran out. Many millionaires and other great men have died in Boston since then but none of them has achieved a three-hundred-foot monument.

Only Three Days More of the Great Inventory Bargains

The greatest event of the year is the inventory bargain sales now being pushed so vigorously at the Union Supply Company's stores. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, June 28th, 29th and 30th, are the last three days. If you have not participated up to this time in securing some of the wonderful bargains there is yet an opportunity. The June inventory sale in women's, misses' and children's raiment has been most popular event in the coke region. It is not old stock; it is new goods, and we have cut the prices to close out the lines. An exhibition of wonderful bargains for men and boys in suits, trousers, shoes, hats, shirts, neckwear; new popular styles at reduced prices. Three more days of the great bargains.

THE INVENTORY BARGAINS has been the event of the year in the rug, carpet and furniture departments. It has been the greatest event in the meat departments. It has been a great event in the grocery departments. It has been a money saving opportunity for high class goods in every department of the great Union Supply Company sixty-three general department stores.

These facts are marshalled attractively. They are dressed in interesting words.

They are frequently illustrated with deft touch.

No part of the newspaper is more interesting than the advertising columns. Certainly no part is more factful.

SHORT STORIES OF THE DAY'S DOINGS ABOUT SCOTTDALE

Prominent Men From Borough and Township Called to Jury Duty

FOR AUGUST TERM OF COURT

They Are Drawn From the Jury Wheel by Sheriff Steele and Commissioners; Term Lasts Five Weeks; Other Scottdale News.

Special to The Courier

SCOTTDALE, June 28.—Several prominent citizens of Scottdale and East Huntingdon township have been drawn as jurors for the August term of court at Greensburg. It will begin August 10 and will last for five weeks. Twenty-seven men will serve the first week as grand jurors and these include John Beatnet and Frank Butler of East Huntingdon township and F. C. Kelsey and L. H. Vothers of Scottdale. The last named has moved to Ohio so he will hardly answer to his name when the clerk of courts roars them out on the thirtieth day of August.

For petit jury the week of August 30 are Edward Anderson of Scottdale, and Charles A. Adams, J. Z. Fineftock, Lloyd D. King, Jerry Stoner and Daniel Welsh of East Huntingdon township.

On the petit jury for the week of September 6 are included J. Armstrong, J. R. Dille and Thomas Hayes of Scottdale, and James Brown and A. C. Silliman of East Huntingdon township.

Called on the petit jury for the week of September 13 are J. I. Dick, Frank Gloss and J. E. Robertson of Scottdale, and Clyde Blair, William Hixson and H. F. Myers of East Huntingdon township.

For the common pleas court juries for September 20 are drawn John Laughrey and Daniel McIntyre of Scottdale, and W. H. Rankle, W. H. McBeth, Allen Stodson and James Zellers of East Huntingdon township.

The closing week is also represented on the common pleas jury for September 27 by David Cowan, C. W. Leasure and S. W. Vance of East Huntingdon township, and John Grumbley of Scottdale.

DONATION PARTY.

Pennsville and Pittsburg and also some Scottdale people of the United Evangelical Church joined in an old fashioned donation party for their pastor, Rev. P. L. Berkey, of the Mount Pleasant circuit of the church, on Friday evening. They brought a nice donation of such things as are needed in a family consisting of cash, dry goods and groceries. The pastor and his family were very appreciative, and a pleasant evening was spent in singing songs and hymns, with Miss Chelsea Stauffer presiding at the piano. The crowd broke up at 11 o'clock.

COMMUNION DAY.

Sunday was observed as the third quarterly communion at the Methodist Episcopal Church. The communion was administered by the pastor, Rev. H. S. Piper, and Dr. James P. Strickler was the member of the board of stewards to assist the minister in this ceremony. In the evening the sermon subject was "Ministering to Your Memories."

For the Children

Willie Chiels, Holder of an Enviable Position.

When can you find a boy who does not envy Willie Chiels of New York city? Perhaps there are a few, but they are very few, and they hold places similar to that occupied by Willie, "Babe" Chiels, as he is familiarly known. Is mascot of the New York American baseball club. Imagine a boy being a member of a professional baseball club! Think of the pleasure of being dressed in a regulation uniform and empowered to have charge of the bats; then the joy of knowing the heroes of the diamond personally and being received as and considered one of themselves. All this grandeur and good luck have come to "Babe" Chiels, the official mascot of the Yankees. It is fine to be a stage driver, a railroad brakeman or deckhand on a steamboat, but none of these positions compare in honor with the mascot of a big league baseball club. The man beside Willie is Manager Donovan of the New York Americans.

The First Gem.

The pearl is the one gem that comes to man perfect from the hand of nature, and to this its great antiquity as a gem is largely due. Precious stones whose beauty and brilliancy depend on polishing and cutting would naturally be discovered and utilized later.

The discovery of the diamond, for instance, probably dates within historic times. Though known earlier, it was not generally included among the gem treasures of royalty even as late as the seventh century.

It is quite probable that the pearl was the first gem known and treasured by prehistoric man since the search for food must have been the first occupation of the earliest of the race, and the shining pearl would thus have been discovered in river mussels if not in marine oysters. Certain it is that the Old Testament and the ancient written histories allude to pearls and that remoter evidence is found in the tombs and excavated cities of still earlier eras. The Egyptians, Babylonians and Assyrians held the pearl in an esteem verging on reverence.

The Witty Father.

A family, including a young man just home from college, was seated at the dinner table, on which were two nice roasted chickens, one at each end. The father, a practical man of the world, asked his son if he was learning at college.

"Yes, indeed," the son replied. "Why I can make two count three."

"Nonsense, my boy. It can't be done."

"But, father, I can prove it. For instance, the chickens. This is one chicken at your end of the table."

"Yes," said the father.

"And that is two at mother's end."

"Well?" said the father.

"Well, two and one are three."

The father was puzzled for a moment, but only a moment, for he quickly recovered and said:

"Well, I will take this chicken; wife, you take that one, and, son, you can have the third."

Pull and Let Go.

When the friends you have invited arrive give each one a different colored ribbon. Each one holds it by one end. The other ends are all united in the hands of the one who leads the game, usually the hostess. She stands in the middle of the circle. When she says "Pull!" they must let go. When she says "Let go!" they must pull the ribbon which they hold. Those who fail to comply with the rules of the game must give a forfeit.

The Cotton Flies.

An amusing outdoor game is the cotton flies. One of the players takes a flake of cotton or bit of down, which she casts into the air in the midst of a circle formed by the guests. She at once puffs with her breath to keep it floating in the air, and the one toward whom the flake takes its course must puff in the same way to keep it from falling. This flake can be kept up a long time if the players are quick.

Conundrums.

Why is a defeated army like wool? Because it is worsted.

When is a bee like a criminal? When in his cell.

What kind of money is found in all parts of the world? Matri-mony.

Russia's Immensity.

The Russian empire is as compact as the British empire is scattered. It is one great mass with no parts, except possibly a few islands along the coast, separated from the main body. There are no distant possessions, no overseas territory, and the czar claims no dominion over any land not in the northern hemisphere.

Its area is what astonishes. It is larger than all of North America from the canal north and with the islands of the Caribbean thrown in. One sixth of the land area of the globe is under the czar's flag and within its boundaries is a population greater than that of Great Britain, Germany and France combined. And this population of between 160,000,000 and 170,000,000 is increasing at the rate of 2,000,000 a year by birth. The population of the empire has doubled in forty years.

Of the many strange things about Russia perhaps the strangest is that this immense empire has no salt water port which does not freeze up in the winter. No big nation in the world is so circumscribed in this respect.—Brooklyn Standard Union.

Why You Wink.

The unconscious act of winking bears a quite important relation to the welfare of the eye. This being the most delicate and sensitive organ of the body exposed to the air, it is in constant need of the protection given by the eyelids, which not only close quickly at the approach of danger, but are employed in washing the surface of the eye. Moistening is required to offset the drying effect of the air and cleaning to prevent the injurious effect of dirt. Every time you wink the eye is washed. Inside the eye is the little tear gland, which, as its name implies, is busy storing up the supply of tears. This gland keeps the inside of the lid moist, and you wink automatically whenever the surface of the eye becomes dry or a particle of dust or anything else strikes it. This work is done as often as necessary, and to realize how often it is necessary try how long you can keep your eyes open without winking.

How to Live One Hundred Years.

Lo and behold, a physician comes forward with the announcement that it is as easy as falling off a log to live to be a hundred years old. He says all you have to do is to avoid alcoholic or malt liquors, don't smoke, go to bed at 10 p. m. and get up at 6 a. m., sleep soundly, don't worry about making money (we don't—we worry about not making it), do nothing to excess (don't marry to excess, of course—Mark Twain said that), the simple life all the time, don't get excited (we don't over anything except elections or prizefights), eat only when you feel inclined (or have the price—this has no reference to newspaper men, who never eat a regular meal). With the exception of the parentheses this is really serious advice, and you would do well to heed it if you wish to make the century mark in life's little Marathon. However, as for us we wouldn't swap one hour of a golden, glittering time on pay day in Joyous Jacksonville for a whole century of such a simple and uneventful existence anywhere else.—Phil H. Armstrong in Florida Times Union.

After a Good Bargain.

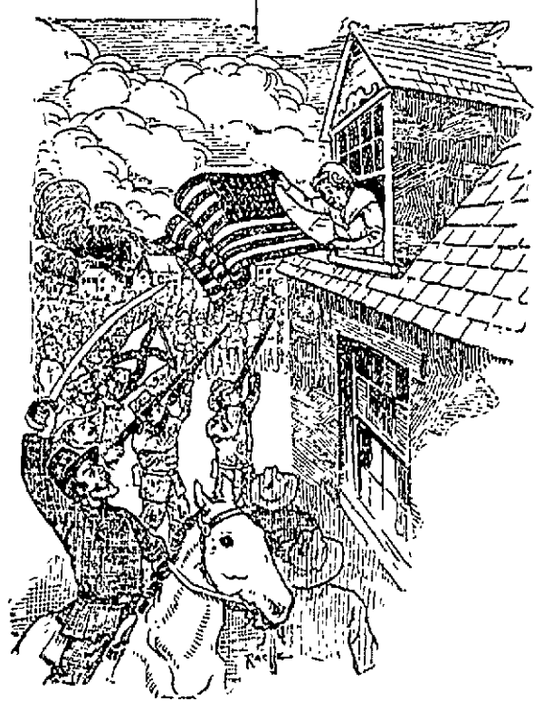

"This suit will cost you $300 per day."

"Do you find people willing to pay such prices?"

"Plenty of them."

"In that case what will you take for the hotel?"—Judge.

HISTORIC FLAG INCIDENTS

Barbara Frietchie and The Flag

Here we show the main incident in the story of Dame Barbara Frietchie, who, gray haired old woman tho' she was, feared not to flaunt the beloved Stars and Stripes in the very faces of the enemies of her country as they marched through the streets of Fredericktown.

That the rebel leader, General Stonewall Jackson, recognized and honored her act as one of extreme bravery and patriotism, is shown by the lines of the verse in which he says: "Who harms one hair of yon gray head Dies like a dog; march on," he said.

Occasions constantly arise in every village and municipality when every patriotic American citizen should SHOW THE COLORS. Upon every National Holiday and upon occasions of a purely local nature the Stars and Stripes, floating to the breeze from every house and flagstaff, lends color to the occasion and fosters a spirit of patriotism as well.

The Daily Courier makes it easy and profitable for all of its readers to secure a "BEAUTIFUL FLAG." Easy because it is simply necessary to clip the Flag Coupon on Page 7 of this paper and bring it to The Courier office with 98 cents in cash. Profitable, because no such flag as this has ever been sold at so low a price.

HOW TO GET A SPLENDID FLAG FOR 98c

On page 7 of this paper you will find a Special Flag Coupon. All that is necessary for you to do is to clip this coupon and bring or send it to the office with 98 cents in cash and this beautiful flag is yours.

A Human Life Net.

"There is some soul of goodness in things evil would men observingly distill it out." How much evil marked the daily lives of the actors in the following episode is a matter of conjecture, but they were, says a New York newspaper, denizens of what is called the "underworld."

A lodging house in one of the crowded tenement districts in New York caught fire. The lives of the inmates were endangered, and seven of them, all women, were cut off by the flames. They rushed to the windows and shrieked for help.

Then, to quote the newspaper account, "a crowd of Park row human flotsam and jetsam and boys of the neighborhood bunched themselves together to break the force of the women's fall and called to them to jump. The jump was more than thirty feet, but all the women made it safely.

"Only one of them needed attention, but some of the men walked away with heads cut by flying heels and backs strained by the shock of the falling bodies. When the reporter spoke to them most of those who made up this human life net said gruffly that they had no names. When they were asked where they lived they would only say, 'Oh, round here.'"

What He Had Better Do.

Macpherson in talking to his minister told the reverend gentleman that he was going to take a trip to the holy land.

"And whiles I'm there," he said enthusiastically, "I'll read the Ten Commandments aloud frae the top of Mount Sinai."

"Nae, Macpherson," said the minister gravely, "tak' my advice. Dinna read them aloud. Bide at hame and keep them."

Land of the Dane.

Denmark has almost abolished pauperism and illiteracy among her people. Only one in a thousand of her adult population is unable to read and write. The number of those dependent on charity is extremely small and is lessening each year in spite of a barren soil and a villainous climate. The whole land is prosperous, and its productiveness is increasing year by year. The community health is improving, crime is exceedingly rare, and refinements of life as well as its necessaries are growing more abundant and are distributed in wider and wider circles.—Chicago Journal.

Superfluous.

"I understand they have a curfew law out there now?" he said.

"No," his informant answered. "They did have one, but they abandoned it."

"What was the matter?"

"Well, the bell rang at 9 o'clock, and almost every one complained that it woke him up."—Chicago News.

PETEY—He gets a Compliment With a Kick in It. By C. A. Voight.

LOVE in a HURRY

by GELETT BURGESS
ILLUSTRATED by RAY WALTERS
COPYRIGHT BY GELETT BURGESS

"Hush! Wait a minute!" Carolyn whispered. "Is that he out in the office, there, with Miss Fisher? You wait here, girls, I'm going to call him in!" Leaving them, she walked quietly to the door.

"Hall! Oh, Hall!" she called sweetly. She smiled as if upon an angel. "Come in here a minute, will you? I've got a little surprise for you!" She darted back, and took her place with the others, three in a line.

He came in smiling, saw the three outraged ladies, and stopped, with an embarrassed grin. "What is it?" he managed to say.

"Oh, Hall, Hall, you've broken my heart!" Mrs. Royalton wept again.

"Hush up, Rena. You let me talk, Miss Gale, will you? I'd like to hear just what this particular sort of cur can find to say for himself!"

"Guilty!" said Hall, seeing the uselessness of protest. "Now go ahead!"

"Have you got any face to stand there and calmly acknowledge—" Carolyn broke in. "You deliberately deceived us, then—all three!"

"Just exactly as you deceived one another!" he could not resist adding.

At that, all three broke loose together, and, for the next five minutes Hall Bonistelle faced the music. It was not only useless, but impossible, to answer them. He stood, with his arms folded, bowing and smiling sardonically.

The stiletto was Carolyn's weapon, but for Rosamund, the bludgeon, "Aha, little Jack-the-Lady-Killer, are you? Three at a shot, eh?" sang in between "You're a cad, Hall Bonistelle, you're a liar and a cheat!" Poor Rena could but feebly pinch him with reproaches; she was dissolved in her woe. So it went, spitting, pounding and blubbering—he ought to be horsewhipped, someone's father or somebody's brother should thrash him! It was an outrage and a disgrace. What if they called in the company to publish his rascality? They were glad, glad, glad he had lost his money; it was good enough for him!

It was then that Hall saw a great light. He gave a laugh that stilled them.

"Oho! The money! So that's why you were all suddenly so keen to marry me, was it! Why, I don't see how you women have the nerve to look me in the face! Why, a woman will do anything for money, then, will she? She'll cheat, and lie and cut her best friend's throat behind her back—by jove, you're the coldest-blooded set of female vampires I ever saw in my life! It's a revelation to me! So that's all you wanted, eh? That's why you all hung fire this morning, and got me into this confounded mess—oh, you wanted time! Yes, time to investigate my finances, of course—and then, when you do get wind of this devilish old legacy, then you're all after me on the gallop, like a pack of Siberian wolves—falling over one another to see who can get to the telephone first! Well, thank God I found it out in time! Thank God I'm free of all three of you, you lying, back-biting, mercenary, two-faced hypocrites! Well, it's all over, now. I advise you to train your guns on Cousin Jonas!"

There was a disagreeable pause. When the pot calls the kettle black it is uncomfortable for both. Then the three women, their rage and disappointment still unappeased, swept out of the studio and left him alone. Rosamund went out, surly and lowering, Carolyn sarcastic to the last, with a bitter smile upon her lips, Mrs. Royalton abjectly weeping, hurling her faint reproaches with a lessening might. She turned at the door to pull the ruby ring from her hand, and, with all of Flodie's abandon, if with less of Flodie's justification, tossed it at him.

He drew a long breath, and dropped into a chair. It had been a very bad five minutes; it was a relief to have it over. What next? The music still continued, but it would soon be time for his guests to be leaving. He knew he ought to go out into the other rooms and play the host—but he could not. It was impossible for him to see again the three ladies who must just now be making their scornful exit. As soon as they were out of the way, he would do his best with the others.

He knelt down on the floor and began to search for the ring.

"Are you in here, Mr. Bonistelle?" came Flodie's gentle voice at the door.

He jumped up and faced her. "Yes, Flodie."

She came in timidly and gave a glance at the clock. "Yes, it's all over; the money's gone!" he said calmly. "Have they left yet?"

She nodded, smiling. "They're all making up to Jonas with all their might. By the way they talked, you must have had a pretty lively time with them." Flodie sat down demurely.

"I should say so, Flodie! Three ladies have told me tonight rather explicitly that I'm a cad. What d'you think?"

"You're not!" she cried. Flodie sat up indignantly, her eyes blazing.

He gave her a quick surprised look, and his face lighted with hope. It was the first time their eyes had met in perfect accord. It was the first real thrill.

"Then—" he hardly dared to say it—"have you forgiven me, Flo?"

"Have you forgiven me?"

"You! For what?" It was evident that she need not fear him.

Flodie cast down her eyes a moment, then raised them boldly. "For pretending."

"Pretending what?"

"Pretending that I didn't care." Flodie, suddenly embarrassed, jumped up and walked away from him. Hall made a leap for her. He caught her in his arms.

"Oh, do you care, Flodie? Do you? Do you? Even after all this?"

He kissed her ardently full on the lips.

Flodie extricated herself from his grasp. "Isn't it—of course it's very nice, Hall—it's awfully nice but isn't it—just a little—well, premature?" She brought it out timidly, but her face showed her rapture.

He dropped his arms and stood, suddenly disconcerted, then laughed nervously. "Why, surely you ought to believe me now, Flodie! I'm right back to where I was this morning—no fortune, no prospects—just working for my living, and quite head over heels in debt."

Flodie giggled blissfully. "Do you want your eggs boiled two minutes, this morning, Mr. Bonistelle, or three?"

He smiled and shook his head. "Yes, it's all over—I'll have no millions to offer you, after all, Flodie. I'm just a poor devil of a photographer. Don't you believe me now?" he repeated anxiously.

Flodie was trembling. "Believe what, Hall?" she hung her head. "You haven't said it, yet!"

For a moment he stood looking at her, puzzled, then a broad grin spread over his face. "Oh!" he cried. "Well I guess! Is that it!" Jubilant, now, he approached her with playful mock-romantic airs, knelt and put his arms around her. "Will you marry me, Flodie?"

CHAPTER XV.

Flodie inexplicably burst into tears. Hall was alarmed, but he managed to keep his wits about him. "Quick, Flodie, for heaven's sake! There's somebody coming! Will you?"

Like a flash she lifted her head, her face still dripping tears. "That's the idea! Now there's some style about that! The answer is 'Yes!'" she exclaimed, and burst into laughter almost hysterically. Then she turned and gave a glance at the clock.

"Thank God!" said Hall fervently. "Flodie, isn't it great to be in love—really in love?" He hugged her tight. "Flodie, you're going to be my wife, did you know it? My wife, Flodie! You're going to be Mrs. Hall C. Bonistelle! I'm going to marry you up as quick as ever I can—before I lose you again!"

"Oh, you'll never lose me, Hall, never, never, never!" She paused and added archly, "and I'm awfully sorry now I threw away that ring!"

"Jove, I forgot the ring. Of course." He fished it out of his pocket, and looked at her queerly.

"Why, you didn't throw it away, did you?—it was—"

"Of course I did. Don't you remember? Now put it on. There! I'm so glad you didn't get a diamond!"

"By jove, Flodie," Hall jumped up ecstatically, holding another ring in his hand—a plain gold band. "Here's the other one. Say, now we've got those women out of the way, and you've said 'yes'—Lord, I feel like celebrating. Say! Let's get married tonight! What d'you say?"

She sat up excitedly. "Oh, Hall, let's! Right away!"

"By Jupiter, we will!" he exclaimed. Then suddenly the smile on his face faded, and he gave a gesture of dismay. "Oh, Lord!" he exclaimed disappointedly.

"What, Hall?"

"No use, Flodie, we can't do it!"

"Why not, Hall? Can't Mr. Doremus marry us? He's a justice of the peace. Didn't he say he'd marry you if you wanted?"

"Oh, it isn't that—d—n it all, I'm such a fool I forgot all about the license! Confound it, it's a shame! Just my luck! We'll have to wait till tomorrow, Flodie."

Flodie suddenly disengaged herself from his arm. "You wait a minute!" She ran to the door, looked into the office and called "Alfred!" In another minute she was joined by the janitor. Hall waited in perplexity and wonder.

Alfred's apron was removed, he shone in the full glory of his evening suit, still spotless. Alfred was pale—pale as a ghost, and his eyes were big and sad. His lips were working nervously, as if he were repeating something to himself. Flodie, her hand in his arm, walked down to Hall Bonistelle.

"Now, Alfred," she said encouragingly, "you tell Mr. Bonistelle what we did this afternoon."

"Alfred!" exclaimed Hall, "what has he got to do with it?"

"I hope you won't be offended, Mr. Bonistelle," Alfred began timidly, clasping his hands tightly in front of him. "It was a great liberty to take, I know, but Miss Fisher asked me to and I knew it would be all right. And if it hadn't been all right, Mr. Bonistelle, I'd a-done it just the same, if Miss Fisher asked me to, Mr. Bonistelle! I told her I would and I did. I asked her would she ask me something hard to do, Mr. Bonistelle, but I didn't believe that nothing could be so hard as what she asked me, Mr. Bonistelle, and it was the hardest thing that she could ask!"

"Flodie, can you translate?" Hall asked, puzzled.

Flodie laid an affectionate hand on poor Alfred's shoulder. "It simply means that Alfred's true blue," she replied soberly. "He has the loyalty of a dog. It was awful of me to do it, though. I don't know what you'll think of me, Hall. But you haven't told him, yet, Alfred. Go on! And do hurry, please!"

"Well, she asked me to go down to the city hall with her, for to get a marriage license. This afternoon, it was, and you know what I thought. Well, we went up to the desk and we got a application—a printed paper it was tellin' all about what we was and how old, like, and we sat down to a table and Miss Fisher, here, she took a pen and ink."

"Hurry, Alfred, hurry!" cried Flodie impatiently.

"Well she went to work and wrote 'yesses' and 'noes' on the lines. And then she signed her name, Miss Fisher did, and she handed me the pen." Suddenly Alfred turned his head, and busied himself for a moment with his handkerchief. He returned to his narrative almost choking. "I was just a-goin' to sign Alfred J. Smallish; that's my name and what I always sign it, when she says to me, Miss Fisher did, 'You write down this here name what I tell you: Hall Cutler Bonistelle' she says. 'You asked me to ask you to do something hard for me, for to prove your love for me'' she says, and indeed I did, Mr. Bonistelle—and so I signed the paper, and we had it swore to."

"Well, give me the paper, Alfred! Do hurry!" Flodie cried anxiously.

Alfred drew from his pocket the document, and handed it over to Hall.

Flodie bent over it. "You see, Alfred had to pretend he was you, that's all. He's the same color, you know—"

Hall looked up at Alfred, and smiled.

"Well, I mean he's white," Flodie explained anxiously.

"Yes, he certainly is rather white," Hall remarked and turned again to look at the document.

"Of course we did have to lie a little, that is, Alfred did—about your father and mother, you know. I didn't know what their names were, so we had to call them John and Mary—you don't mind, do you?"

"Not at all."

"And you haven't any former wives, have you, living or dead?"

"Not one!" Hall was emphatic.

"Then it's a perfectly good license, and it fits you and there's your name and everything, and mine, too. You don't mind, do you, Hall, dear?" Flodie began to blush violently, and was very confused. "You see, I kind of thought you were going to ask me, I sort of felt it coming, and I knew you'd be too stupid to get one yourself!"

"Flodie—Fisher—Bonistelle!" he exclaimed, and threw up his hands, "you certainly are a business woman! I don't see what chance I'll have after we're married! But I'm perfectly willing to let you manage me, Flo. I certainly have botched things whenever I've tried to run them myself."

"What Did You Say to Hall Bonistelle?"

He turned to Alfred, who stood, looking at his shoes. "And you committed perjury, Alfred, just for my sake?"

Alfred drew himself up proudly. "Not at all, Mr. Bonistelle. It was for Miss Fisher I done it!"

"Then you did it for me. By jove, Alfred, let me shake your hand. A man can't be thanked for a service like that, and he can't be rewarded; but if there's anything I can do for you, you name it!"

"There's only the one thing I want now, Mr. Bonistelle. Would you leave me be your best man at the weddin'? There was once when I hoped I could be bridegroom myself, Mr. Bonistelle, but I see now that was foolish. But it would be a satisfaction to see the last of Miss Fisher, if you don't mind."

Hall, laughing, slapped him on the back. "Sure, Alfred! You can be the chief mourner, Alfred—that is, if this license is all right. Let's call in Mr. Doremus; he'll tell us." He started for the door, but Flodie had already beckoned to the attorney, who now came in with her.

"Well, we're going to have a ceremony, after all!" said Hall. "I'm going to take you at your word and let you marry me."

Flodie interrupted his reply. "What is the shortest possible way you can do it, and have it legal, Mr. Doremus?" she asked, nudging him anxiously.

"Oh, I'll fix that,' said the lawyer. "It won't take two minutes."

"What's goin' on?" came a harsh voice at the door. Jonas Hassingbury was looking in.

"Come in, Jonas, come in and be 'among those present.' It's my merry marriage morn!" cried Hall gayly.

Flodie whispered to Alfred, "Run, Alfred, bring everybody in, quick!"

Alfred disappeared into the office and could be heard announcing the invitation.

Jonas, however, had begun to bristle. He strode up to his cousin belligerently. "Why, it ain't no use to git married now, Hall, you know that! Don't be foolish!"

"Hurry, Mr. Doremus, hurry!" Flodie was growing frantic. She pointed to the clock. It indicated twenty-eight minutes past twelve.

Hall, however, was in no haste. 'Oh, I know, Jonas; but you see Flodie and I have decided to lose no more time. You can give her away, if you want to." He sat down, laughing at his cousin's consternation.

"But it's past twelve!" Jonas insisted, pointing to the clock.

"Oh, I know that! That proves it's a love match, doesn't it?"

"Come here, Hall, and stand up by me! Anyone would think you didn't want to get married!" Flodie called nervously.

By this time the company had begun to enter, and soon flooded the studio, laughing, wondering, joking with Hall.

"Go ahead!" cried Flodie. "We're ready, Mr. Doremus, quick!" She stamped her foot angrily.

"Oh, wait a minute," Hall interposed, "we want this thing arranged a little. It won't do to rush it." He turned to his guests "Ladies and gentlemen," he began, when Jonas broke in again.

"See here, I object to this!" He walked up to Mr. Doremus angrily.

Mr. Doremus, however, had already begun to thunder out, "Hall Bonistelle, do you take this woman, Flodie Fisher, to be your wedded wife?"

"Just wait a minute!" cried Jonas, looking at his watch.

"We're off!" came in a chorus from the excited guests.

"I do!" replied Hall. "See here Jonas, you mustn't interrupt the game, you know. Sit down and be quiet!"

"But I got something to say about it—"

"Flodie Fisher do you take—be quiet, Mr. Hassingbury, I'm running this—"

"It's a scheme! It's a fraud!" Jonas appealed wildly to the company.

"—this man to be your lawful wedded husband?"

"Oh, you old scamp, you, you've sold me out!" Jonas shook his fist at the bride and was pulled furiously back by Alfred.

"I do!" Flodie screamed. "I never Mr. Hassingbury! I only promised to prevent his marrying the others! I never said—"

"Put on the ring! Put on the ring!" the company screamed laughingly to Hall. He obeyed.

"Then I pronounce you man and wife!"

"I never said I wouldn't get him myself!" Flodie's words were smothered in Hall's kiss.

Immediately she was surrounded by the gentlemen of the company, who passed her from lip to lip, protesting, laughing, struggling to speak.

Mr. Doremus pressed Hall's hand "I congratulate you, Mr. Bonistelle!" he cried enthusiastically.

"Thank you, sir!" Hall answered "I've got a fortune in Flodie."

"I think you have! Two!" was Mr Doremus' reply. "Mr. Hassingbury would you mind telling me what time it is?"

Jonas turned white, and started hurriedly to leave without a word. Flodie, alert, caught him as he turned and snatched out his watch as deftly as a pickpocket. She held it up to the company. "We've won! Eleven fifty-nine!" she shouted.

The company took it up, and shouted, too. Watches were brought out from a dozen pockets, compared and the time corroborated.

"It's a lie!" Jonas protested, "why, look at the clock! It's half past twelve! He's too late I tell you! The money's mine!"

"Why, that's right!" said Hall, amazed by the sudden confusion. "I set that clock myself!"

"But I told you what time to set it!" Flodie fairly yelled now. "And I told you half an hour ahead on purpose!"

Mr. Doremus held up his hand, "Silence!" he thundered. "Mr. Hassingbury," he declared solemnly, "there are witnesses enough present to prove that Mr. Bonistelle was married before midnight. As you are aware, I seldom take sides in any controversy, but in this case, my little friend here, Flodie—Bonistelle—completely won me over. There's no possible doubt that Mr. Bonistelle will inherit his uncle's fortune."

Hall burst out of his trance with a whoop. "Hurrah!" he screamed, "I've won four millions of dollars!"

Flodie stretched up on tiptoe and pulled down his dramatically extended hand, "No, sir," she announced, "I won it myself!"

CREAM BLOUSES MODISH.

Cream is the modish tone for the spring blouse, not pink. Rarely lovely as the pink blouse is in delicate flesh or shell tones, its day has passed, and these blouses are offered for sale on the bargain tables, while cream and sand colored models have the places of honor among exclusive new spring wearables. Hemstitched blouses of sand colored khaki fine for sport wear have buttoned down pockets and plaits at front and back. Cream lace and net blouses meet the requirements of formal spring tailleurs, and there are good looking blouses of tan shantung, cream tinted georgette crape and ecru pussy willow silk, all with the long sleeve and collar high at the back, whatever its cut may be at the front.

BEAUTIFUL DOGWOODS.

When This Shrub Blossoms Summer Is Again Here.

The magnificent magnolias spread their languid petals so early, while the trees are yet bare, that one fears it is all too good to be true. But with the delicious dogwoods it is another story. One knows summer is practically here. And the dogwoods are not only charming when their snowy sheets are spread; their foliage is vivid in the fall, a glorious crimson, and the berries are even more richly tinted. Unfortunately the hungry birds often descend upon a tree and devour every blossom. Like many other shrubs, its buds for the following year will be set this autumn. Even prettier than this dogwood is the pink flowering variety, but while the color is wonderful the form is not as characteristic.

The round topped, upward branching red maple is superb against a very blue sky. Then the dark gray bark looks black and the crimson blossoms, which grow on short pedicels, seem more than ever brilliant. In Georgia and Florida these blossoms are a superb sight in March and a delight to the northerner because they come so early.

One need not be forever looking aloft, however. Right down in the grass are floral riches a-plenty. The first favorite, no doubt, is the violet, the dear, modest little violet, which everybody loves and which blossoms everywhere.

The little blue hepatica was one of the floral early buds; likewise the pinky and exquisite arbutus, which some call the mayflower. In April and May the bloodroot is found, its pure white golden hearted blossoms being as lovely as the juice of its root stock is surprising.

Put Salt In Milk.

Milk will not turn sour if a teaspoonful of fine salt be added to every quart.

When preparing onions, turnips and carrots for cooking, cut across the fiber, as this makes them more tender when cooked.

In warming a steamed pudding or in steaming a stale cake never put the article on a plate or flat dish. Place the pudding in a colander in the steamer, and you will be surprised to find how much lighter and more delicate the pudding will be than if a plate had been used for the moisture to settle on and make the pudding heavy.

The Use of Soap.

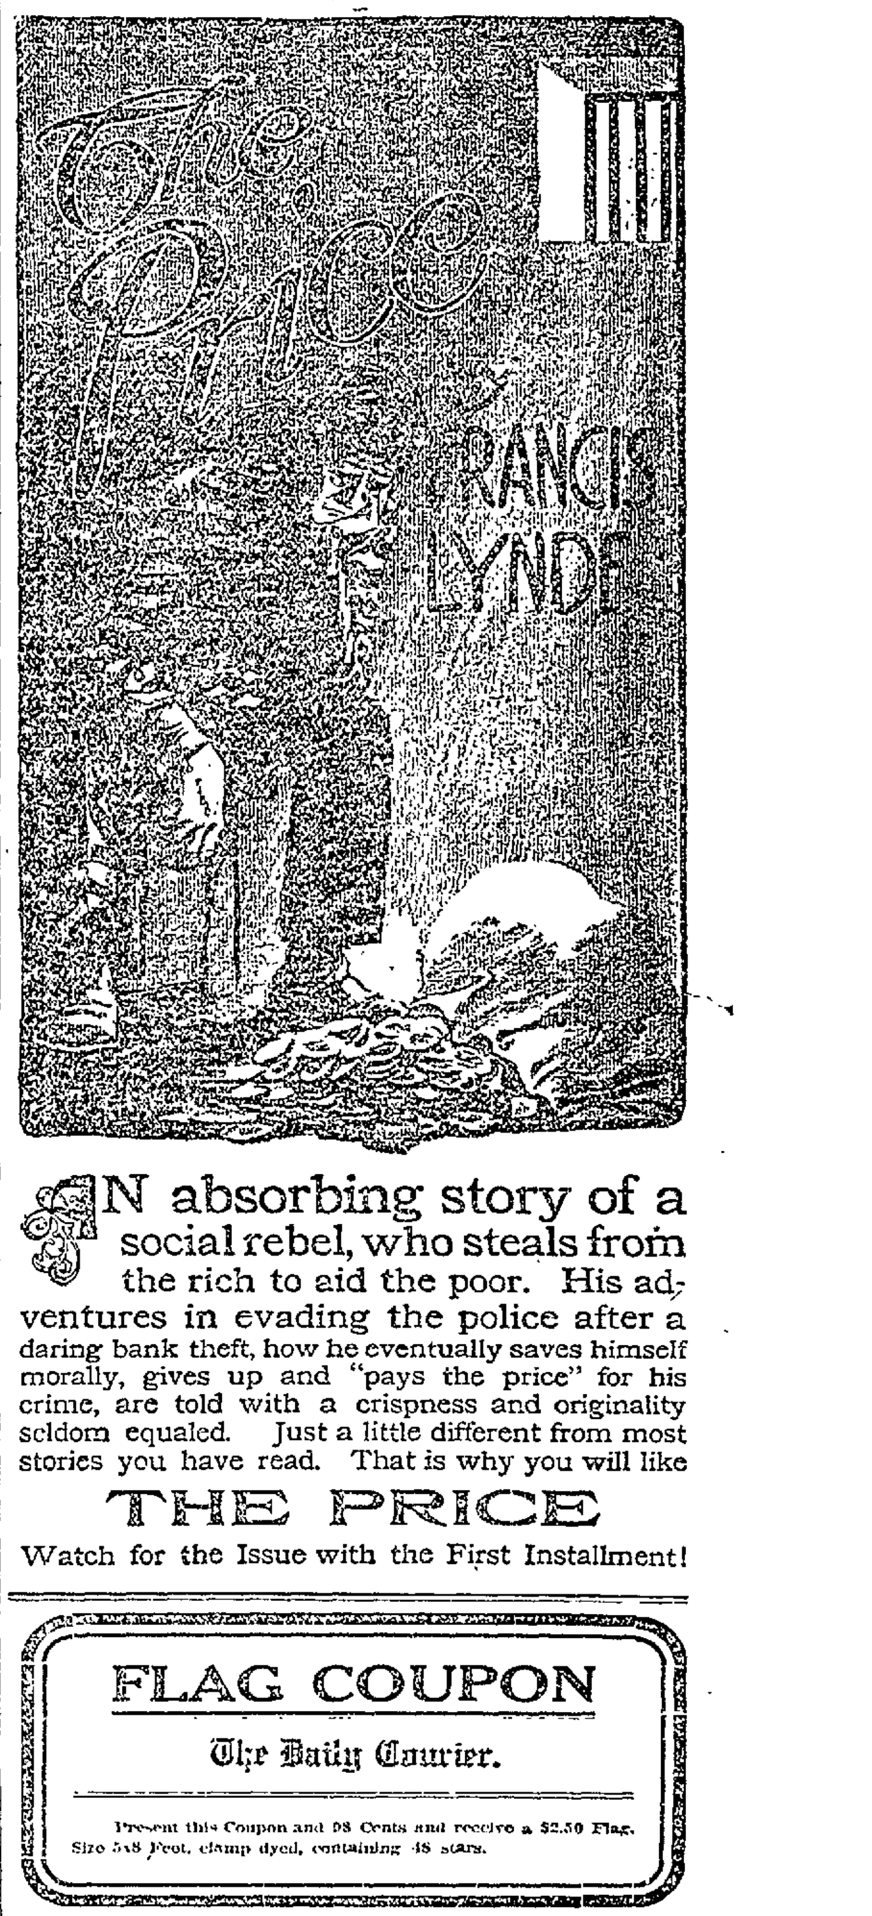

Use soap, but let it be pure soap. There are soaps made from spermaceti, which is the oil taken from the head of the whale. It is very expensive, but one may not economize as to the complexion. This is a recipe for the care of the complexion every day:

On rising massage the face eight or ten minutes. Massage it with the two middle fingers—that is, the second and third—and with a round, not lengthwise, motion. The round motion removes lines. The lengthwise motion makes them. Remove what is left of the cold cream with a linen towel or an old handkerchief, then apply a little more cold cream, then powder.

In the evening take ten to twenty minutes for cleansing your face. First wash it in tepid water—never cold water except in emergencies of great fatigue then massage for eight or ten minutes. Remove the cream, then apply more cream, very little more, and go to sleep.

Ought to Love It.

Lover (passionately)—Sir, I love the very ground your daughter walks on. Father (calmly)—No doubt you do. It's worth $250 a front foot.—Town Topics.

AN absorbing story of a social rebel, who steals from the rich to aid the poor. His adventures in evading the police after a daring bank theft, how he eventually saves himself morally, gives up and "pays the price" for his crime, are told with a crispness and originality seldom equaled. SCOTTDALE WINS OPENING GAME OF THE 1915 SEASON

Fine Pitching of Braithwood Humbles Uniontown Independents.

HE STRIKES OUT 21 BATSMEN

Big Crowd Sees Cust Independent Mill Town Team Inaugurate Its Schedule and Prospects are Bright for a Successful Season; Pitcairn Next.

Scottdale won its opening game of the season Saturday by defeating the Uniontown Independents 6 to 0. Uniontown never had a chance, Braithwood proving invincible at all times. Scottdale found Tencate [illegible] either way. A big crowd turned out to open the season for Scottdale and the fans are enthusiastic over the year's prospects.

Braithwood [illegible] strikeouts, allowing Uniontown but four hits. Only one man drew a base on balls and that was in the eighth inning. He let one slip in the same inning and hit Morgan. Tencate struck out eight men in six innings and Coughenour, who supplanted him, had three to his credit in two innings. Against Tencate Scottdale [illegible] seven hits.

Scottdale started things going in its half of the first inning, when four men crossed the plate. [illegible] in and Long each got a [illegible] and Price [illegible] on a base on balls. King got a single, scoring Slevin. Sproull followed with a two bagger, bringing in three more runs.

Until the eighth inning Uniontown had no chance of scoring. Then Hopwood got a base on balls and Ford made a single. Morgan was hit filling the bases. Flanigan followed and struck out. Tencate attempted to bunt on the third strike and was called out. Whaley fanned and Uniontown was retired with the bases full. In the next inning Sturgis got a hit but was caught stealing.

The Mill Towners scored two more runs in the fifth when Klingensmith got a base on balls, took second on a passed ball by Harold and reached home on a two base hit by Slevin. Slevin came home on a wild pitch.

In the seventh an almost complete change was made in the Uniontown lineup. Tencate was supplanted by Coughenour and went to right field. Ford took Sturgis' place on first and Sturgis went to second. Hopwood went from second to short. Long started with a hit but ran into the ball and was out. Price fanned and King was out Sturgis to Ford. Only three men faced Coughenour in the next inning also.

The Scottdale team will play the Pitcairn Athletic Club at Scottdale at 3:30 next Saturday afternoon at Ellsworth Park. Manager Steve [illegible] will have his team in even better shape by that time and expects to have another victory on the string.

TROTTER DEFEATED.

After Having Game Sewed Up, Independents Pull Out Ahead.

Trotter was defeated by the Mount Pleasant Independents on Mount Pleasant grounds Saturday, 7-6. Trotter led until the fifth inning when the Independents tied and in an extra inning the Mount Pleasant nine pushed the winning run across the plate with two out.

Trotter was doing all the hard playing, getting three two baggers, and having five stolen bases while not an Independent stole or had more than a single to his credit, and only nine at that. Dame Fortune, however, favored Mount Pleasant and despite the fact that the game really belonged to Trotter, their opponents took it.

Trotter will play Juniata at Trotter this evening at 5:30.
